Judicial Ticket.

For Chief Justice of the Supreme Court—ORSAMUS COLE.

For Associate Justice of the Supreme Court—JOHN B. CASSIDAY.

The Democrats have given up all things except blundering. That sticks to them closer than a brother.

There are only ten candidates in Waukesha county for the office of judge of probate. Should there be a few more come to the surface, they will have a little fun over in Waukesha.

When Senator David Davis gets tired of the fence he might mount the dome of the capitol. He is never useful, and on the dome he would be conspicuous, and that is better than being nothing.

Senator Mahone who did such good work in laying out Ben Hill and the Democratic majority in the Senate, has a fortune of two million dollars. He is a little fellow, but he is a good man to have around.

The most serious question for the Democrats in Congress to settle, is what to do with Ben Hill's mouth. He shoots it off too often and too recklessly, and every time it goes off it hurts the Democrats.

It seems the State fair will not have to go begging this year, if Madison and Janesville do not want it. Fond du Lac wants it badly, and will raise several thousand dollars to build buildings and put the grounds in good condition. If Janesville wants the fair, the people should not be slow in their movements to get it.

The prohibition resolution was again defeated in the Assembly, after having been made a special order for Wednesday evening. It was indefinitely postponed by a vote of 51 to 39, a worse defeat than before. This is the second time the resolution has been killed as a special order, and probably there will not be another effort to bring it up again this session. All the members from this county in the Assembly voted for the adoption of the resolution.

The following card has been issued by Mr. J. R. Berryman, State Librarian, and sent to interested parties throughout the State:

MADISON, Wis., March 15, 1881. After consultation with the attorney general and secretary of state, it is suggested that in order to facilitate the duties of the canvassers at the coming judicial election, and that the voters may come upon with the blanks prepared by the secretary of state, that all judicial tickets be printed substantially in the following form:

For Chief Justice Supreme Court for term ending January 24, 1882—ORSAMUS COLE.
For Associate Justice Supreme Court for term ending January, 1882—JOHN B. CASSIDAY.
For Circuit Judge for term commencing January, 1882—E. J. H.
For County Judge for term commencing January, 1882—G. H.

Those who have charge of printing tickets for the coming judicial election will avoid mistakes by carefully following the instructions given in the above card.

The State Journal mentions the fact that one of its weekly exchanges, published in the northern part of the State, and containing nearly four columns of original matter, begins an article on the late Matt. H. Carpenter, as follows:

We neglected in our issue of last week to mention the death of Hon. M. H. Carpenter, United States Senator from this State; it slipped our mind, but as everyone by this time knows of it, we will not go into any particulars. There's enterprise, skill, energy, and action, that would astonish the elder James Gordon Bennett. We prize a fight for a constabulary would so engross the attention of that editor, that the death of Carpenter which shocked the entire nation, and the assassination of the Czar which made the whole civilized world tremble, would hardly be sufficient to attract his attention.

THE INVESTIGATION.

It would be a very foolish thing for the members of the Legislature to pay any attention to what the Madison Democrat or the Madison correspondent of the Milwaukee and Chicago papers say in regard to bribery in the late senatorial contest. A resolution has already been introduced in the State Senate asking for a committee of investigation. Senator Thomas said he did not want to sit under the imputation that was implied in the articles published in Milwaukee and Chicago papers, and therefore he wanted an investigation. The members of the Legislature would constantly be in hot water if they paid any attention to the charges and statements of irresponsible and reckless newspaper correspondents who infect the capital. They very frequently lack judgment in dealing with a question as important as that of a senatorial contest, and too often do injustice to the members who are compelled to face the battle and bear all the responsibility in the contest.

There are more than nine hundred and ninety-nine chances out of a thousand that there is not the least foundation for the charges made by the correspondents; but for the sake of making a sensation, they imagined fraud and bribery, and corruption and dishonesty, and wrote the thing up for the newspapers. We are inclined to think that Assemblyman McFeiridge was about right when he said the charges of corruption had risen solely in the fertile brains of Milwaukee and Chicago newspaper correspondents, and as to the questions of personal honor, the Legislature had nothing to do with them. Mr. Remy, who has been bitterly and wickedly attacked by the anti-Cameron men, desires and even demands an investigation. The attacks upon him by Mr. Pierce and Mr. Field were not only in bad taste, but they were of the lowest possible character. Mr. Remy has made a personal explanation, and in language vigorous enough to make his accusers blush with shame, and all reasonable men will accept his explanation as a sufficient answer to the malicious attacks against him.

We were in hopes that there would be no investigation for two chief reasons, (1) that the investigation will be abortive; and (2) that it will create an expense and a delay without any corresponding benefits. Mr. Remy has the advantage of the soreheads who accuse him of treachery, and as long as he is on top in the fight, he should rest content.

AN ECONOMICAL MOVEMENT.

The joint committee on claims in the Legislature have inaugurated a reform movement which will strike the attention of thoughtful men in all parts of the State. Whether the course the committee have taken will be entirely practical remains to be seen, but the general impression is that the attempt to cut down appropriations for the State hospitals is exceedingly timely and wise. To show what the joint committee on claims have done and what they expect to accomplish, we will give some figures in regard to the amounts asked for by the State board of charities, the amount recommended by the committee on charitable and penal institutions, and the amount allowed by the joint committee on claims.

The sum asked for by the board of charities for the Northern hospital, for the present year, was $78,619, and about the same amount was recommended by the committee on charitable and penal institutions. But the committee on claims have allowed but $63,480.

Then comes the State hospital over which there has been so much trouble, crimination and recrimination, and bitter feelings. The State board of charities wanted to appropriate $101,246.00 for that institution during the present year. For the purpose of showing how little regard that board has for economy, we will give an itemized statement of the estimated expense which would be incurred during the coming fiscal year. Here it is and it is well worth studying:

Current expenses.....$75,646.00
Heating apparatus.....15,000.00
Cementing basement.....1,000.00
Rebuilding laundry.....6,000.00
Medical library.....500.00
Fire proof files.....20,000.00
New boiler.....5,000.00
Total.....$123,146.00

This is a pretty healthy appropriation considering the result of the recent investigation. It seems there was no disposition on the part of the board of managers to economize on expenses. The committee on charitable and penal institutions dropped the $15,000 for the heating apparatus, and the $500 for a medical library, and made the total $84,646.00 instead of $101,246. But the joint committee on claims made a new deal, and the amount allowed stands as follows:

Current expenses.....$33,374.00
Rebuilding laundry.....6,000.00
Rebuilding laundry.....6,000.00
Total.....$45,374.00

Here is a saving of nearly $50,000, and we venture the statement that the State hospital will be as well managed with $55,000 as it would have been had the $101,000 been allowed. The idea of expending $15,000 for heating apparatus and $3,000 for fire files makes a man of ordinary modesty blush. The State board of charities seem to think the State treasury is an inexhaustible gold mine at which they have free and unlimited access.

The amount asked for the Institution for the deaf and dumb was $44,603, and the amount allowed by the joint committee on claims was $36,818. The total amount asked for by the three institutions named is $224,003, but the amount allowed by the joint committee on claims is only $155,619, a saving of a little more than $68,000.

This will prove to be a bad year for grab games in the Legislature, and for the honor of all our State institutions, we trust there will be no more remorseless demand for appropriations that the hospitals may be managed on the broad gauge. The nearer the hospitals are managed on the principle that a wise and careful man would manage his own private affairs, the better it would be for the managers, and it will be much healthier for the State treasury. It has been said, and likely there is a good deal of truth in the statement, the apartments of the Northern hospital which are occupied by the superintendent and some of his force, cost as much as the entire portion allotted to the insane. He treads daily on rich Brussels, almost covering acres; he is surrounded by elegant furniture, decorated walls, and everything necessary to make the hospital a palace for the superintendent. It has been a serious question whether the hospital was made for the superintendent or the insane, and the experience so far has hardly brought out a solution to the question.

SENATE.

MADISON, March 18.—In the Senate a bill passed in regard to the State seal. Finkelnburg's resolution to investigate the alleged charges of bribery, &c., in connection with the late election of United States Senator, was referred to a select committee consisting of Woodman, McKeeby and Paul. The investigation will not be made as it is thought the committee is not in sympathy with the resolution and will recommend an indefinite postponement.

Simpson moved the recommendation of last evening's vote on woman suffrage carried.

The resolution was then ordered to a third reading.

ASSEMBLY.

Bills passed relating to removals of cases in justices' courts.

Relating to fees of jurors in other than the circuit court.

Making incurable insanity grounds for divorce.

Amending the constitution and providing for registry law.

AN ABANDONED PROJECT.

New York, March 17.—In all probability the World's Fair enterprise has fallen through, and it will be abandoned at least so far as holding it in this city is concerned. General Grant has come to the conclusion that he cannot further help to float the affair, and will withdraw from the Presidency as soon as the commission can find a man to take his place.

I wish the fair every success, but I find I cannot give it my personal attention, and therefore I intend making way for somebody who can give it the attention which it requires in order to make it successful.

STANLEY MATTHEWS.

An Effort to Have His Nomination Rejected.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—It is reported that prominent men of both parties from Wisconsin, Illinois, and Indiana, the judicial circuit ex-Senator Matthews is nominated to fill on the United States supreme bench, have been requested to come to Washington to oppose his nomination, and several have arrived. The main objection to Matthews is that he is not a resident of the circuit. They want him rejected and a resident of the circuit nominated. Judge Isham, law partner of Secretary of War Lincoln, and Judge Jewett, both of Chicago, are endorsed in that circuit for the place; but, of course, Matthews' rejection must be secured first. Whether this opposition will or not can not yet be foretold, as the Senate has been occupied with the question of organization, and has not given the nomination of Mr. Matthews any consideration. There is in this State some strong opposition to him, but the disposition to put through all nominations of the new administration and give it a smooth start, may, and probably will, lead to Matthews' confirmation.

IMMIGRATION.

MILWAUKEE, March 17.—A great many contracts are being made by the St. Paul railway company for the transportation of immigrants to Minnesota and Dakota. The railway officials say that the tide of immigration will commence earlier and continue longer in the ensuing season than during any season before.

SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT.

MADISON, March 17.—The Senate chamber and galleries were crowded to-night by spectators attracted to hear the arguments for and against woman suffrage.

The Simpson resolution being on the calendar as the special order. Senator McKeeby opened the debate in favor of the resolution. It was his maiden speech for the session, and he made an earnest appeal, speaking eloquently and forcibly. The justice of the proposition that woman is equal of man and therefore fully entitled to as many rights and privileges, was clearly demonstrated. Senator Burrows spoke against the resolution. He cited Judge Jenkins, United States District Attorney in Wyoming, as authority for the statement that woman suffrage in that Territory was a failure. He said that women themselves did not recognize their own sex in choosing advisers referring to Queen Victoria, whose ministers are exclusively males. Senator Price closed the debate by making a vigorous speech in which the whole question was exhaustively treated. At the conclusion the question was put upon engrossment and lost by the following vote:

Ayes—Blackstone, Crosby, Ellis, Griffin, Hamilton, McKeeby, Paul, Phillips, Price, Quarles, Scott, Sutherland, Wiley, Woodman—14.
Nays—Burrows, Carter, Finkelnburg, Hunt, Kelly, Kusel, McGrew, Rankin, Richardson, Ryland, Simpson, Smith, Thomas, Van Schaick, Weaver, Wing—16.

Mr. Simpson explained that he voted in the negative in order to be able to obtain a reconsideration when the absentees arrive. The suffragists seem to have lost Weaver, whose vote with that of Simpson would have incurred the affirmative vote to 16, and with Anderson to 17, a majority. Burrows presented a substitute for his compulsory bill, in which the penalties for women neglecting to vote upon project are stricken out. Upon motion of Rankin, the amendment was laid on the table, carrying the bill with it.

THE WAR OFFICE.

The New Secretary Overrun by Office Seekers—The Doors Closed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 17.—The pressure for office has been so great that Secretary Robert Lincoln has been obliged to place himself behind a barrier of rules. He has issued an order to 10 o'clock members of Congress and people not connected with the department will be received. From 1 to 3 o'clock heads of bureaus and officers of the department who have business with the secretary will be admitted. After 3 o'clock all will be excluded, and officers of the department are requested not to call unless specially invited. The following order issued by Secretary Lincoln is posted around about the war department:

"I am being possible for the secretary of war to hear personal applications for clerkships, etc., he directs that no person be admitted to see him for that purpose. Applicants will file their papers with the chief clerk, who will submit them."
Secretary Lincoln has appointed Mr. Charles S. Sweet, of Chicago, as his private secretary. Mr. Sweet arrived here last night, and entered upon his duties. He has been in Mr. Lincoln's law office in Chicago for the past five years. Technically, the secretary of war is not granted a private secretary, but he can appoint a clerk and detail him for that service.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The board of managers of the national soldiers' home began their quarterly meeting here today, General W. B. Franklin presiding. George B. McClellan met with the board for the first time. Several applications for admission to residence were received and referred to committees. The session continues to-morrow.

Lawrence Barrett, the tragedian, called upon the President several days ago, to get the widow of General Bartlett, who was killed in battle, the position of postmistress at Pittsfield, Mass. Mr. Garfield said he was sorry he could not personally serve him, but would refer him to Senator Dawes, who had the office in his immediate keeping. Dawes told Barrett he would like to serve him, but his hands were tied by other considerations. His inclination was to give the soldier's widow the place, "but, but," etc. Whereupon the actor pugnantly observed that he (Barrett) was glad he belonged to a profession where men could use the dictates of conscience and live up to their principles.

MURDERER'S CONFESSION.

GOSHEN, Ind., March 17.—A stranger appeared at Ed Dolch's boarding-house for lodging. He went to bed and a physician was sent for. Several rills were found broken, and the man was in such a critical condition that the doctors told him he must soon die. He made the following statement:
My name is John McCormack. On last Thursday evening myself, with six companions, were drinking together in a saloon in Upper Sandusky, O. We had a large amount of money, which we divided equally between us, when a party of roughs entered the saloon, and a fight ensued. During the melee I killed a man and subsequently escaped, coming as far as Goshen and being unable to go any further.

The man died in a few hours after telling the strange story.

Many Railroads have discarded the old make of scales, substituting the Improved Howe, Borden, Seleck & Co., Apts. Chicago.

THIRTY MEN KILLED.

SANTA FE, March 17.—The Indians made a raid on a wagon train near Puertecito-Chocolate, New Mexico, and killed thirty men and burned all the wagons. Further particulars are not obtainable at present.

The Center of the World.

"New York will be the center of the world," said Mr. Jay Gould to a Galveston reporter. Taking down a map he continued: "Here are two cables we shall lay this summer from Newfoundland to Ireland. That gives the connection with Asia. On the other side of the continent we propose to start from San Francisco and put down a cable to the Sandwich Islands. Thence we shall lay one on this line (pointing it out on the map) down to Australia and another from the Sandwich Islands in almost a direct line to Japan. And up here (laying his finger on Puget Sound) we propose to start with another cable, carrying it across Behring's Sea to Kamtschatka, which will open up the Russian telegraph system to us, and thence to China. In addition to this, it is intended to further develop the West India cable service and connect the east and west coasts of South America with New York. The chain of cables, completed with the heart of the organization in that city, makes New York the center of the world."

EXTRAORDINARY STORY.

A French-Canadian Said to be Living With His Neck Dislocated.

From the Pittsburgh Telegraph.
An accident occurred on Monday at Ramey, Clarion county, which proved to be one of the most extraordinary cases ever recorded in the history of surgery or medical jurisprudence. James Gault, a French Canadian, employed at Ramey's mills, fell from a trestle about twelve feet to the ground. After recovering from the shock resulting from the fall he was unable to move his head, and Dr. Edwards, attending physician, discovered that the neck was dislocated and some of the bones broken; but it was evident that the spinal column had not been severed. The doctor reset and put the fractured neck in position, and set about devising means to put it in place, until the broken bones and contused ligaments attain their normal condition. To this end a muslin bandage three inches wide was wrapped tightly around the neck, and to it were attached two lugs, one on either side. To these a rope was fastened and run over a pulley fixed to the ceiling of the room. A bucket was suspended from the other end of the rope, and in it were placed various weights, so that the patient could adjust the contrivance as occasion may require by simply reaching to the bucket and removing or adding one or two weights. He remains in a sitting posture and should any slight change of position occur the tension of the rope will still support the weight of the head. With these appliances for his support, the unfortunate man will have to remain practically in the same position until the injured parts become united or death ends the case.

H. A. PATTERSON, P. M.

The Comforting Goobers.

That we are a nation of peanut eaters may be inferred from general observation; or it can be proved by statistics. We presume it is possible to procure our favorite legume in small quantities and of inferior quality in the markets of the old world; but only in our new and surging civilization does it attain that perfection which is expected and appreciated by the educated palate of a true American. Our population is increasing with great rapidity and so likewise is the peanut crop. A comparison of figures upon this point is very encouraging. In 1875-76 the total crop from the goober-producing States--Tennessee, Virginia and North Carolina--amounted to less than 800,000 bushels. The following year this yield increased nearly eighty per cent., and dropped to less than the old average in the year succeeding. In 1878-79 the yield was 1,270,000 bushels, while the total consumption of peanuts in the United States for the year ending September 30, 1880, was 1,727,000 bushels and the stock on hand is 238,000 bushels, which is the measure of production of 1879-80. The crop for the year ending September 2, 1881, is estimated at about 2,220,000 bushels and the few weeks longer in which the political campaign will continue will furnish occasion which we doubt not will be well improved for encouraging activity in the peanut trade. The democratic character of our Government can be largely accounted for by the prevalent taste for the peanut. It is a democratic edible. It is in the mouths of the rich and the poor, the lofty and the humble, and wherever two or three are gathered together with their pockets distended by the crisp and fragrant pods we may be reasonably sure that they are citizens of one country and that country the great and glorious land of the United States. At the variety theater, at the circus and the agricultural fair, in offices and upon street corners, at the fireside and by the work bench the suggestive little bag is seen and it is frequently smuggled into schools and prayer meetings. This shows that in popular estimation it goes side by side with all other interests and is held to conflict with none. Its associations are as wholesome and cheering as they are pervasive. Success to the goober!--Boston Post.

They All Know.

Once in a lifetime you meet a man who will admit that he doesn't know all about a horse, but he may come around next day and claim to have been temporarily insane when he made the admission. As a rule, every man knows exactly what a horse is, whether anything ails him or not and can point out a dozen instances where nature could have improved his work, no matter how well he did it. Yesterday a horse which had been looked over by the Fire Department and rejected on account of size was tied to a post on Griswold Street. He was as sound as a dollar, not even showing a wind-puff. Pretty soon along came two lawyers and one of them remarked: "Pity such a nice animal as that is foundered." "Yes, and I can see that he is wind-broke, to boot," was the ready response. Then the cashier of a bank halted and took a look at the horse's teeth. He was going away, when a mail carrier asked: "How old do you call him?" "Some men might buy him for twelve, but they couldn't fool me. That horse will never see sixteen again." The best judges had called him six, and his owner had proofs that he wasn't a month older. The mail carrier felt of the animal's ribs, rubbed his spine and observed: "He's got the bots or I'm no judge of horses." Then a merchant halted and surveyed the horse's legs, lifted its front feet, pinched its knees and feelingly said: "Been a pretty good stepper in his day, but he's gone to the crows now." The next man was a book-keeper. It took him about five minutes to make up his mind that sweeney was the leading ailment, although poll-evil, heaves and glanders were present in a bad form. "What is sweeney?" queried an innocent bootblack who had made up his mind that the horse had liver complaint. "Sweeney?" repeated the book-keeper, "look at the way he carries his head and learn what sweeney is." "O, no, I'm in another--sweeney affects the eyes." "I guess not," said an insurance man; "I guess sweeney affects the lungs." "Lungs?" cried a broker--"you mean the stomach?" And they were jangling over it when the owner of the horse came and led him away.--Detroit Free Press.

Wages and Cost of Living in China.

There have been many books written on China from the time of Abbe Hue to the present. But most of them have been too general to present any precise idea of the actual social conditions in that vast Empire. Recent official observation has, however, done much to clear away the mists which obscure real life. Most of the trades which we have are carried on in the Central Flowery Land. There are there the traditional "butcher, baker and candlestickmaker." But there is a peculiarity about the Chinese which is not to be found in civilization. The artist obtains no higher rewards than the ordinary craftsman. There appears to be a dead level for all who work with hand or finger. A master-workman in any of the trades in China gets $3 per week, or $156 per annum. But the workmen only get half that remuneration; $1.50 per week, or $78 per annum, is the average rate, and it is not every workman who can obtain it. Youngsters or women get 50 cents per week, or $26 per annum. It will be observed that these are the wages paid in the higher walks of art and mechanics. There is only one class of operatives who are more handsomely rewarded. Gold and silversmiths do a little better. The silk reeler or spinner sometimes gets from $1 to $2 per day, because the silk has to be reeled off the cocoons in a given time, and as a consequence the work has to be prosecuted day and night. Consul Denny, at Shanghai, thus figures out the expenses of living in connection with the compensation specified:

|---------------------------|-------|
| For a master, per annum: | |
| For food, etc..... | $ 72 |
| For rent, etc..... | 36 |
| For clothing..... | 12 |
| Total..... | $120 |
| For a workman, per annum: | |
| For food, etc..... | $15 |
| For rent, etc..... | 12 |
| Total..... | $35 |

The same authority adds: "The master generally lives at the workshop, where he has, perhaps, two rooms, besides a place to cook in. The household furniture may be estimated at from $20 to $30. The ordinary workman, if married, will share a small house with a friend, and occupy one room, and have access to the kitchen. He may live with his parents, in which case his earnings go to the common fund. Under such circumstances, $10 to $15 covers the value of the household furniture." We have no form of Chinese life in California, except in very rare cases, which corresponds to that which is here portrayed. There are only a few Chinese families in this city. Nearly all the Chinese are male adults, without any family ties or connections, at least in this country. But we get a glimpse of that peculiar state of things in China, also. Consul Denny further says that the Chinaman is "a bachelor, and away from his family, he will either sleep at his employer's for a consideration, or stay with a friend; in either case, his whole inventory consists of a box with his clothes and his bedding." This is a complete portrait of the Chinaman in California. He is got up in light marching order.

But the common laborer, whether in field or kitchen, does not get anything like the wages of the skilled artisan. The farm laborer, during harvest time, besides his meals--worth about 10 cents--from 10 cents to 15 cents a day, or from 70 cents to $1.05 a week. He can be hired by the month for from $1.50 to $2. If he gets permanent employment he is willing to accept $12 per annum, with board and lodging. If he works for shorter terms, 50 cents a month will suffice for house rent, and $2 per annum will keep his wardrobe in repair. But there is a grade below these free laborers known as the coolies, who are often glad to work for 5 cents a day.--San Francisco Bulletin.

Forgotten Sinceres at Washington.

Mr. Z. L. White, editor of the Providence (R. I.) Press, is writing for his paper some reminiscences of Washington life, from which we take the following: "Before this house (the one occupied by Mr. Seward when he was attacked by Paynel, for several years afterward, a sentry paced night and day, even when Mr. Seward had moved away and gone out of office. The same building was once used as a club house, and from it Key had just issued when he was shot by Sickles. This lonely sentry, still at his post long after he had been forgotten at the War Department, and allowed to remain, I suppose, because no one thought it was his duty to relieve him, reminds me of several similar incidents that I related in Washington. The Great Falls of the Potomac are about sixteen miles above Washington, and during the war there was a station for the collection of provisions for the army on the bank of the canal near these grand cataraacts. The road between Washington and Great Falls was several times raided by the Confederates, and a block-house was erected by the Federals at a point three or four miles above Georgetown to prevent parties of rebels from passing up and down the route. At the close of the war the defenses about the capital were one after another deserted, but nobody seems to have remembered the Corporal's guard stationed out there on the Aqueduct road, and they remained on duty for a year or two. After they were relieved, the block-house was set on fire by tramps or boys, and only a few blackened posts now mark its site. A still more remarkable case was that discovered by General B. F. Butler about ten years ago. He was passing around among the appropriations one day, when he discovered an officer in the Capitol whose duties he did not understand. He was 'watching crypt.' An investigation showed that many years ago it was proposed to deposit the bones of General George Washington beneath the Capitol, and a crypt was prepared for that purpose. When it was completed, a public officer was appointed whose duty it was to watch this crypt and prevent its desecration, and there he had been ever since, growing gray in the service, and while Congress had appropriated money to pay his salary year after year, nobody had thought it worth while to inquire how he earned it."

The Syracuse Standard puts the outlook for the year in the following pathetic manner: The 51,791 people in this city will, during the new year, be trying to make both ends meet. The only ones who will succeed, however, will be the babies with their toes in their mouths.

The Guadalupe Telegraph has been edited for some time past by a clergyman. It is now, however, about to pass into other hands, as the minister says "is tired of serving two masters, and has concluded to work for the Lord alone."

"Which we wish to remark," as the shipper said when he requested the return of goods which were addressed to the wrong party.

In Memory of a Fatal Supper.

There lives on Arch street, in this city, a landlady who mourns the death of her husband in a manner so peculiar as to attract the attention of all who know her. Her husband was a member of an influential religious denomination, and had considerable local celebrity in the church in question. He was accustomed to receive visits from many of the clergy, as well as an occasional call from a Bishop. Several years ago a supper was given in the boarding-house over which his wife presided in his honor. There sat down at the table a score or more of prominent ministers and laymen of the creed to which he was attached. A profusion of dainties was served to the guests and all partook heartily. The genial husband, however, seems to have surpassed them all in the consumption of the menu, and he indulged extensively in jelly, cake, ice-cream, strawberries, pineapple, apples and nuts. He also participated in a glass of sherry wine. During the night he died in spasms.

Now comes the odd feature of the story. His wife lamented his death pathologically and had general services of the most extensive kind. On his coffin were placed, among other flowers, some lilies and a cluster of immortelles. These tokens of regard were not buried with the body, however, but were preserved by the widow. Soon after the burial she related to a friend that her love for the defunct was so great that she intended having a memorial of him made, and she thought nothing could be more appropriate than a quantity of the different articles of food equal to the amount by means of which the good man expired. She went, therefore, to a well-known confectioner and had him make a cup of jelly, a piece of sponge-cake, a plate of ice-cream, with half a dozen strawberries in it, a pineapple, several apples, a glass of sherry wine and some nuts. It appears that the cup of jelly eaten by the deceased at the supper was filled to the brim and a portion of the contents spilled over on the table. In the glass model the cup is filled with the very top and several glazes lie around the bottom of the cup. All these models, very nearly the same quantity as the late lamented partook of, were placed under a glass case, and in addition two roses, worn by the husband and wife on the festive occasion, were placed and put among the fruit beneath the glass.

The entire case stands in the corner of the large parlor of the boarding-house on a table. On a shelf above the glazed fruit is the wreath of lilies which rested on the breast of the deceased at the obsequies. That rests under a glass case. In room across the hall are the immortelles, which also decorated the coffin. The widow landlady loves to recount, with tears in her eyes, the story of that last supper and its consequences. Each new boarder, sooner or later, hears the strange story, possibly with great amusement. The lady is very kind-hearted and benevolent despite her eccentricity. The glass work is very well done, indeed, causing the fruit to have an excellent natural look. Were the name of the lady and the number of the house to be disclosed it would be recognized at once by many persons all over the country, as the house is noted as an excellent one, and the same landlady keeps a large and much-frequented house in the summer at Asbury Park. -Philadelphia Times.

Coasting in Connecticut—An Exciting, but Dangerous Sport.

NORWICH, CONN., is the coasting paradise of New England. It has more hills than old Rome, and most of them are twice as steep. It is impossible to go twenty rods in almost any direction in the old town without climbing. Since the snowfall of Christmas week the city has been surrendered on every evening soon after sundown to the coasters. After dark it has been perilous to walk the streets, and there have been accidents to men, women, boys and horses without number. On the various hills around Norwich, a spectator counted one evening last week nearly one thousand sleds of every description, from the long pickered double-ripper to the small boy's tip-up and the home-made miniature ripper.

In these sliding matches young and old, male and female participated. Aged men and gray-haired matrons were often seen controlling the sleds. The oak plank of the ripper or the resplendent upholstered cushion of the expensive double sled.

The double ripper is a late invention of Young America, but is familiar to country people. Its relation to the ordinary sled is that of the ice-boat to the skate in point of speed. It is formed by yoking up two large sleds tandem, and joining them with a narrow oaken plank. The pilot sits on the prow of the plank, and steers the front sled with a foot tiller. The ripper is made large or small to suit the skill of its proprietor. Norwich and New London have long vied in the development of double-ripper architecture, and they look upon the coasting men of the west of New England as simply amateurs. In the course of the past five winters they have developed coasting into a sport as distinctive as that of yachting or horse racing. They have their peculiar terms to describe features of the sport. They have undoubtedly attained rates of speed unequalled anywhere, and fearlessly take risks that would appal tyros. Each winter New London sends her liveliest double-ripper and her favorite riders to Norwich on a January evening to compete for the championship of the season. The sleds that are used in these matches are great structures that will seat eighteen to thirty men. The place chosen for the contest is Fox's Hill, in Preston, a populous suburban village just across the Shetucket River. Its summit is a mile distant from the river. It is the highest point of land, with the exception of Taunton Hill, along the Connecticut seaboard. It is a Titan among the other eminences around Norwich. The slide is three-quarters of a mile long, and when the icy track is unusually smooth and solid the best double rippers have gone across the bridge into the city. The usual stopping point is an old watering trough, a quarter of a mile from the bridge.

Fox's Hill has been thronged with coasters all this season, and some fair time has been made. On last Wednesday evening Chas. S. Baker's double-ripper, which for three years has been accounted the fastest sled in Connecticut, was timed by two timekeepers, one at the foot and the other at the top of the hill, with accurate chronometers. The track was by no means in first-class condition. The sled bore twelve men, with Mr. Fiske, who is the most expert steerer in Eastern Connecticut, at the front. The descent to the watering-trough, three-quarters of a mile, was made in a fraction less than forty-five seconds. On the double-ripper no one allowed his feet to touch the ground, his supports along the plank; he is enjoined to keep perfectly still, as the slightest movement of a passenger when a sled is making such fearful speed is likely to result in disaster. Disaster means mutilation, and perhaps death. So perfect is Mr. Fiske in the art of steering that he can run his sled with a hair's breadth of a line, and he avows that with a single movement he can upset the sled in an instant, if it is necessary to avoid collision. As every passenger is in danger of being killed in case Mr. Fiske upsets his sled when going at breakneck speed, he has not been able to carry his theory into practice. One of the passengers on the trial trip, on Wednesday evening, said to the writer that it was his first experience, and would be his last. "It was a perfectly still night," said he. "The hill descends steep, you know, at first, for about fifteen rods. As we began to float in the air. There was no sound, we moved so swiftly. I didn't think that we were going fast. But in an instant a perfect gale was blowing; the road was a white mist; there was a constant buzz in my ears. I couldn't breathe; I knew when we reached the Preston Village, which begins at the foot of the first descent, by the wall that was on one side of the road. That was all I could see; the rest was all a blank, a white mist. I never expected to reach the foot of the hill alive. In a second, almost, we began to slow up, and in another I got off the sled for the last time."

Mr. Fiske is about twenty-five years of age, slight and athletic, and is the son of a well-known physician here. His sled was made in Providence, and he brought it with him when he moved here three or four years ago. Its great speed was never developed until a few years ago. It is called "The Queen of Norwich." No connecting plank is of three-inch seasoned white oak. It is strong enough to support five tons. It is shod with fine half-round silver steel. Its cost was about fifty dollars. It is the sled that was used in a disastrous contest with the double-ripper of the month in 1877. Mr. Fiske steered his sled at that time and won the race without accident. The New London party, piloted by Mr. Fred Allen, were unlucky. From the start nearly to the silk mill, which is about half way down the course, the Norwich sled, which had started behind, steadily gained. At the mill the sleds were neck and neck, and here Mr. Allen, confused by the terrific speed or on account of his unfamiliarity with the foot, made a wrong movement with his foot, and the next instant the sled and its occupants were hurled against a lamp post and over the ground. All were picked up unconscious. Some of them lay at the point of death for days; some were crippled for life. One man was partially dismembered, and the leg of another was broken in two places. -Cor. N. Y. Sun.

Glaciers.

SPEAKING of the evidences of glacial action in the Sierra, Mr. John Muir, the California geologist, says that the most striking and attractive are the polished glacier pavements, because they are so beautiful, and their beauty is of so rare a kind, so unlike any portion of the loose, earthy lowlands where people make homes and earn their bread. They are simply flat or gently undulating areas of solid granite, which present the unchanged surface upon which the ancient glaciers flowed, and are found in the most perfect condition in the sub-alpine region, at an elevation of from 8,000 to 9,000 feet. Some are miles in extent, only slightly interrupted by spots that have been given way to the weather, while the best-preserved portions are bright and stainless as the sky, reflecting the sunbeams like glass, and shining as if polished afresh every day, notwithstanding they have been exposed to corroding rains, dew, frost and snow for thousands of years. The attention of the game-seeking and gold-seeking mountaineer is seldom commanded by other glacial phenomena, as moraines, however regular and artificial in form, or canyons, however deep, or strangely modeled rocks, however high and sheer; but when he comes to these bare pavements he stoops and rubs his hand admiringly on their shining surface, and tries hard to account for their mysterious smoothness and brilliancy. He may have seen the winter avalanches of snow descending in awful majesty through the woods, sweeping away the trees that stood in their way like slender weeds, but concludes that this cannot be the work of avalanches, because the scratches and fine polished striae show that the agent, whatever it was, moved along and up over the rocks as well as downward. Neither can he see how water may possibly have been the agent for he finds the same strange polish upon lofty, isolated tables beyond the reach of any conceivable flood. Only the winds seem capable of moving across the face of the country in the directions indicated by the scratches and grooves. Even dogs and horses, when first led up the mountains, study geology to this extent, that they gaze wonderingly at the strange brightness of the ground, and smell it, and place their feet cautiously upon it, as if afraid of falling or sinking.

Imagination's Power.

DR. MURRELL tells this story: "An old negro woman came to my office suffering from rheumatism in one knee. The knee was actually swollen, and she had been complaining for sometime, and on this particular moment it happened that some boy corrugated paper was lying on my table with the removed from some specimens of machine and paper that had been sent me for trial. She asked me what kind of plasters those were. I told her they were 'patent Chinese corrugated rheumatic plasters' that had been sent me for trial, and if she wanted to try one of them she might. She concluded to do so. Next day she came back, and when I asked her how she was she expressed herself as being able to walk up stairs, the swelling was gone, and she declared that it drew so hard in the night that she had to take it off."

A Maine Amazon.

The champion woman-farmer of Maine, so far as heard from, is a woman at Minot Court, who has herself cut and yarded ten cords of sled-length wood this winter! She is a stout, strong Scotch woman, about thirty-five years of age, with a hand like a New York Alderman's. Her husband is living, but past hard work, as he is more than seventy years old. She carries on successfully a large farm, doing almost all the work herself. She comes to market in Lewiston often, and is shrewd at a bargain. She allows the old gentleman to lead a slippered life, while she lets own broad shoulders bear all the burden, and enjoys it. -Lewiston (Me.) Journal.

"I SHOULD blush to simper," is the latest slang.
